

James Golding

Stanbridge Earls School has such a great atmosphere about it. The teachers are always there to help you when ever you need them, which I have found has boosted my confidence in myself.

I have only just started at Stanbridge having joined year 12 in September 2007. In my last school they didn't teach Design which I have had an interest in for a long time, so I was glad the they taught it here. But also, at my last school, they only had a small department to help with dyslexic people like myself, but I always felt that it wasn't enough. When I came to Stanbridge, I started having these lessons called "one to one's" where it is just you and the teacher. I found this to be really helpful with my dyslexia. I am far happier at this school than I was at my old school.