

Tom Sykes-Brown

I came to Stanbridge Earl's School mainly because of my dyslexia. The teachers at my last school had the same academic strengths as Stanbridge teachers but here the teachers are incredible easy going and make sure there is nothing to worry about, even in the mist of GCSE's. The teaching at Stanbridge is very well suited to most aspects of the individual courses provided. The worry of changing schools at the start of A-levels is incredible nerve-racking. I wondered whether the school would have the right subjects to suit my learning requirements but much of this was solved by the new school.
